James Watt was the man who tried to solve the problem of steam . Day after day he thought about it ,and evening after evening he sat by his grandmother's fireplace and watched the steam coming out of the kettle. "There is something in steam that can move the kettle lid" he said to himself "but how does it work? That is the question and I should understand it." He did one test after another. He tried again and again and each time he learned something new. People laughed at him and said "He thinks that steam can be made to move machines." But James Watt tried again and finally was able to give to the world his first form of the steam engine. And so, from the study of a simple problem, the kettle, a very important work was done.
